The Accumulator was designed by the team and built by students during a collective construction workshop. It functioned like a magnet for the residents and a generator of public space. The Accumulator became a collecting container of information about the structure and dynamics of the public space in the neighborhoods.