01 PARTICIPATORY PROCESS FOR PUBLIC SPACE PRODAC NORTE

J216

Selected for the International Architecture Festivals EME3 2012 and EME3 2013, Gdynia Design Days 2014 and winner of the “Future Cities, Planning for the 90 per cent” award during the 13th Venice Architecture Biennale, Working with the 99% focuses on working with people that need architecture services but do not have the means to pay for it.

Ateliermob started this project by working with Prodac North and South Neighbourhood Associations in order to get the building permits of their houses, self-built by the dwellers in the 1970’s and never legalized.

Funding is being applied in a set of public space improvements, defined under a participatory process, and through the assemblage of a Dwellers Working Unit, that put these changes into practice, using their building know-how and earning an extra income.
