

*This story is an ancient one that minstrels often tell,
of walls, ruins on water
and magic things as well...*

Fons quoque Marsidie compellit saxa natere. (There's a fountain in Phrygian that compels the stones to float' - Geoffrey of Monmouth, "Vita Merlini", 1150 AD)