

the place

Like many towns in Catalonia, Torrelles de Llobregat was created from a rolled vertical axis, the highway (the main street), where the houses and streets of the town grew. Originally destined for low density housing and over time it has been increasing with the new construction projects. Due to the orography of the place, the displacement with a vehicle is important and therefore also the need for parking, which at the moment does not have large areas for this task in the town and therefore the street is also a zone of car park
