

NOVI SAD
SERBIA

LITTLE UMBRELLA PARK

ASSESSMENT

Despite all the restrictions, this small square has become a green spot on the busy line of the city of Novi Sad. One limitation was the impossibility of planting high vegetation, which did not interfere with the design to apply different varieties and types of plants and materials in general so that the space was visually more diversified. The recently developed space does not show the full potential of the umbrella form of planted low-growth trees of different heights, arranged in the arc. High transparency of the space and the green environment slowly gets new users in this urban but still a garden type pocket space.
