Terras da Costa 2012-2017

Terras da Costa is a shantytown in Costa da Caparica, outskirts of Lisbon. Mainly inhabited by Cape-Verdeans and Roma "communities", is located in an agricultural and ecological reserve. The impossibility to intervene in the houses led us to focus our work in the public/common space as an aggregator of different practices/desires of occupation. In other words, what public/common space could be collectively build as a process to question the possibility to invent a new neighbourhood that could respect those same practices at the same time that reclaims the inhabitant's right to the city.
