

The Bastion as a balcony of the promenade overlooking the sea, the neighbouring houses and the city wall's moat.

From neighbouring roofs.

Aerial view showing Princep's Bastion and the promenade arriving at the Cathedral.

Princep's Bastion.

The various levels connected through stairs and ramps.

Lower level showing the area planted with melia trees and the start of the ramps.

Passage under the existing tunnel, remodelled.

Intermediate level showing the access ramps.

Phase 5

Princep's Bastion

The military housing blocks on the Princep's Bastion and its moat have been demolished. The remaining raised area of the bastion is salvaged as a public boulevard with new access stairs and ramps. The slopes that accompany them are clad with blocks of cut marès sandstone and are crowned with Santanyi stone. In the near future, a new plaza with trees will occupy part of the void left by the demolition of one of the housing blocks, and another part –between two of the ramps– will become an information point for Palma's historical centre. The restoration of the arches of Pont de la Porta de Camp and the moat will be undertaken sometime in the future.

PRÍNCEP'S BASTION: THE COMPLETION OF THE WORKS ALONG THE PALMA'S CITY WALLS

AUTHORS: MARTÍNEZ LAPEÑA - TORRES ARQUITECTOS S.L.P. DEVELOPER: Ajuntament de Palma / Ministerio de Fomento