

The project area is located in a residential neighborhood between Stabio and S. Pietro in Switzerland: a place where two areas come together even if different in geometric plans but similar in housing models, as it happens in many situations of liquid or widespread cities. The "triangle" is an urban area of 390 square meters, which is the remaining area of an housing development that had no functionality and most of the year was just a neglected land. The area is bounded by two local roads in the southern part, and by a main road (speed limit 50 km/h) in the northern part which drives to the Italian customs of Clivio, quite busy during rush hours. That road crosses the district from north-west to south-east splitting it into two parts, without any other pedestrian crossings except for the one at the beginning of the street.
